Every group of seniors is special in some way. After all, they have molded and shaped the band program at the high school level for four years. But this group of seniors leaves a legacy that few students achieve. When they started in sixth grade, we knew they were extremely talented by our first concert. We were able to perform music at levels that previous bands could not. Their growth continued through middle school and as they burst into the high school band as freshmen, they constituted the largest group of incoming freshmen this school had ever seen. The seniors you see pictured represent the cream of the crop. They have represented our school and community in Honors Bands, All-State Bands, and competitions throughout the southeast United States with talent, frequency, and character. We wish them every success and we will benefit from their legacy for years to come.
